Institutional Investor is one of the most influential financial magazines in the world. Its annual Executive Team rankings aim to recognize outstanding listed companies in Asia and their management teams. The selection results are highly regarded by the capital market and serve as a global investment trend indicator. This year's selection involved 1,669 companies from 18 industries, with votes from 4,943 buy-side investors managing a total market capitalization of approximately US$2 trillion in Asia, as well as 951 sell-side analysts.

In face of the complex and ever-changing macro environment, investors have increasingly stringent requirements for information disclosure. CR Beer has consistently adhered to the principles of transparency, timeliness, openness, and accuracy in its information disclosure practices. The Group continuously deepens the content and format of its information disclosure, engaging with shareholders and investors through diverse channels to maintain a high standard of corporate governance. The Group's excellent performance in this year's selection reflects the capital market and investors' high recognition of its operational management, business performance, corporate governance, ESG practices, and investor relations.

Looking ahead, CR Beer will continue to navigate the "New World" of the industry by promoting its business model of "dual empowerment model for beer and baijiu businesses" to create long-term value for shareholders and stakeholders.

Founded in New York in 1967, Institutional Investor is one of the most influential financial magazines in the world. Its annual research and selection activities are recognized for their objectivity and professionalism, making them an industry reference benchmark.
